Governor’s Advisory Council Meeting
State Library Report

STATEWIDE PROJECTS

Broadband

Last year we completed a broadband initiative to improve access and connectivity in public libraries. Although we were able to support 84 projects and 139 branches, there is more work to be done. In upcoming months, we will be working on Broadband 2.0. This will include the following:

- Analysis of all of the data collected during the 2014 Broadband project
- Follow up on the collection of data from broadband project grantees
- Review and analysis of the projects that could not be funded and identify possible methods and resources to provide support
- Identify the public libraries that do not participate in e-Rate and provide direct support
- Identify additional opportunities for increasing connectivity for public libraries statewide by working with existing networks like KINBER

We must continue to ensure that public libraries have the best connectivity possible to support their communities and increase our opportunities to share more resources statewide.

Digital Public Library of America

The following press release was put out recently, which describes a statewide initiative to organize the participation of Pennsylvania in the Digital Public Library of America. The State Library has been working collaboratively with all partners to move this initiative forward, and will be supporting coordination efforts.

PRESS RELEASE BEGINS ON PAGE 2
Pennsylvania Library Leaders Announce New Initiative to Increase Access to Commonwealth’s Digital Collections

Efforts to make digital collections held by Pennsylvania libraries, museums, and related cultural heritage organizations widely and freely available via the web are underway. In August 2014, a state-wide group of library leaders from the Office of Commonwealth Libraries/the State Library, Temple University, the University of Pennsylvania, The Pennsylvania State University, the Free Library of Philadelphia, Carnegie Library of Pittsburgh, the University of Scranton, Access Pennsylvania/HSLC, the Keystone Library Network, the Interlibrary Delivery Service of Pennsylvania, Scranton Public Library, and the Pennsylvania Academic Library Consortium convened to explore opportunities and interest in collaborating to this end. The first step is the appointment of the PA-DPLA Planning Group, which is working to establish a Pennsylvania hub on the Digital Public Library of America (DPLA).

The PA-DPLA Planning Group has just completed a survey of cultural heritage organizations to determine which have digital collections and which are able and ready to participate in the early phases of this effort. With 207 institutions responding thus far, half of the institutions report they have digitization collections and related activities in place where the others do not. More information on the findings from this survey are available HERE.

A proposed organizational model has been developed to address governance and management, technology, metadata, standards and content. Active involvement from information and collections professionals from across the Commonwealth will be needed to make this project a success. Therefore the PA Digital Listserv has been established as an open forum for discussing Pennsylvania digital collections and the PA-DPLA project, specifically.
Stacey Aldrich, Deputy Secretary of the Pennsylvania Office of Commonwealth Libraries, acknowledges the importance of this effort. “Pennsylvania is a state rich in history and culture. Our libraries and other cultural institutions have been collecting, preserving, and connecting people to the resources that tell the story of our state and country for over 200 years. This important project will make our stories more accessible and available to the world.”

Through this project, PA-DPLA will become one of the partner hubs in DPLA, supporting a state-wide technology infrastructure to make the Pennsylvania digital resources available through the DPLA portal. Partner hubs in DPLA include a wide variety of institutions including the National Archives; UCLA; state-wide groups in North Carolina, Minnesota, and Georgia; and the New York Public Library to mention a few. DPLA’s goal is to bring together the riches of America’s libraries, archives, museums, and cultural heritage sites, and make them freely available to students, teachers, researchers, and the general public.

"This is an enormously exciting and long-awaited moment for Pennsylvania’s libraries and cultural heritage organizations,” notes Joe Lucia, Dean of Libraries at Temple University. “It opens a path for the global sharing of the uniquely rich materials in our collections and supports the development of educational and research applications that will serve many audiences across our state and the world, from children in Pennsylvania’s K-12 classrooms to scholars of colonial American history working in offices a continent away. Our DPLA service hub project demonstrates the direct value of collaborative action by libraries and cultural institutions to serve the public good."

While this project is in the early stages, we invite libraries and all cultural institutions to get involved now and stay informed through the following channels:

EDGE
Last year, Pennsylvania was one of seven pilot states to participate in the national Edge initiative. The Edge provided a technology assessment tool for public libraries to review how they use and manage technology to support their communities. We had 433 public libraries register and with over 65% completing the assessment. The results were used by many libraries to identify training needs of staff, build strategic plans for technology, and advocate for resources with stakeholders. At the State Library, we used the results to identify common areas that we could provide support. This year we will be offering basic computer competencies training to address the issue of not all front line staff having the basic technology skills to assist patrons.

We are hoping to continue support for access to Edge tools for a second year, and are in discussions with the Edge project director. There have been a lot of changes in the past year, and it would be great for libraries to take again to see progress. More information to follow soon.

LSTA
The State Library launched a competitive LSTA grant process this fall. We received 80 grant requests for a total of $1,966,074.98. A careful review process of all projects was conducted and a total of $413,416 was awarded to the following projects:

Law Library Renovations

For about a year, the Office of Preservation has been working to restore the ceiling of the Law Library and replace the lighting to replicas of the original lights. The ceiling is completed and looks gorgeous. I had no idea that the color of the ceiling is actually more of a salmon pink color. The years of smoking in the Law Library had covered the ceiling in nicotine. The lighting is still in progress with some delays in the building of the replicas.

During the project, the Office of Preservation decided to see if they could also work on cleaning the paneling and improving the electrical situation. We are currently working with them to determine if the project is feasible and the timeline.

Once we are able to move in, we will be transforming the space into a sleek news, law, and government reading and research zone.

THANK YOU
I would like to take a moment to sincerely thank the Governor’s Advisory Council for giving me the opportunity to be the State Librarian of Pennsylvania. It was an honor and privilege to work with each one of you. I truly appreciated your ideas, energy and support over the past almost 2 ½ years. We’ve accomplished a lot together, and I know that you will continue the momentum with the next fantastic State Librarian.

Although I am moving to the furthest western state of the U.S., I will always be dedicated to the success of my home state. Please don’t hesitate to let me know what I can do to support you and the library community in the future. Aloha! Mahalo!
Governor’s Advisory Council for Library Development
Policy for Documentation Required for Reporting Per Capita State Aid
March 10, 2015

INTRODUCTION
It has come to the attention of the Governor’s Advisory Council that small public libraries that receive less than $50,000 in State Aid face a financial hardship when required to provide an independent auditor’s report every third year and a financial review in years that the audit is not required. It has been reported to the State Librarian that both audits and financial reviews cost the same for some libraries to complete, which can be as much at $3500. This cost can claim one third or more of the library’s total allotment of State Aid.

PROCEDURE
While the Governor’s Advisory Council recognizes this issue, it also understands that there must be financial accountability for ensuring transparency and compliance with requirements. Therefore, the Governor’s Advisory Council is recommending the following be implemented:

- If a public library receives $50,000 or more in State Aid, they must file with the State Library an independent auditor’s report, performed in accordance with generally accepted standards, of the entire operations, which includes income from all sources and related expenditures and fund balances of the library during the fiscal year ending December 31 or June 30. The audit shall accompany or precede the application for State Aid.
- If a public library receives less than $50,000 in State Aid, they must file with the State Library the requested Annual Financial Accountability Statement, which shall accompany or precede the application for State Aid. All Annual Financial Accountability Statements shall be notarized.

This policy shall take effect State Fiscal Year 2015-2016, and will be implemented until new regulations are officially adopted.
INTRODUCTION
During the course of work on the new regulations related to district library centers (DLC) and library systems, it became clear that there are many variations among organizational structures, services, communications, and how they work with member institutions. In order to more accurately understand each of these organizations and the roles they play within their communities, we are going to conduct interviews and onsite visits with each of them and their members. All of the information gathered will be used to make more strategic statewide decisions and shape future initiatives that support Pennsylvania libraries.

PROCESS
District Library Centers
The State Library will set up a date for an onsite visit with the District Library Center Administrators and Consultants. During each visit, the State Library will request and discuss the following with the DLC:
- Budget and how State funding is managed
- Organizational structure
- Negotiated agreements
- Policies and Procedures
- Programs and Services
- Successes and Challenges

The State Library will also independently schedule time to speak with members of the District Library Centers.

Library Systems
The State Library will set up a date for an onsite visit with the Library System Administrator and Board Chair. During each visit, the State Library will request and discuss the following with the Library System:
- Budget and how State funding is managed – including formula for distribution of State Aid
- Organizational structure
- Member agreements
- Policies and Procedures
- Programs and Services
- Successes and Challenges

The State Library will also independently schedule time to speak with members of the Library Systems.

A final report that reviews all District Library Centers and Library Systems will be created and presented to the Governor’s Advisory Council Fall 2015.

Introduction
During the review of public library standards, it has come to the attention of the Governor’s Advisory Council that there are 12 small libraries that face significant challenges in meeting the Library Director Certification requirements.

In an effort to bring these 12 libraries into alignment with current standards, the following procedure is recommended:

• A site visit will be scheduled between the Library Director, Chair of the Board of Directors, and an evaluation team comprised of the State Librarian and a member of the Governor’s Advisory Council, and a staff member from the Bureau of Library Development.
• Library Director will be asked to compile a portfolio of information for the evaluation team to review and discuss during the scheduled visit. The portfolio of information should include:
  o Organizational Structure:
    ▪ Board of Director’s By-laws
    ▪ Budget
    ▪ Current organizational chart
    ▪ Staff (paid and volunteer) roster
    ▪ Job Descriptions
    ▪ Strategic Plan
    ▪ Technology Plan
  o Policies:
    ▪ Hiring Policy
    ▪ Conflict of Interest Policy
    ▪ ADA Compliance Policy
    ▪ Anti-Discrimination & Anti-Harassment Policy
    ▪ Collection Development Policy
    ▪ Confidentiality/Privacy Policy
    ▪ Record Retention Policy
  o Summaries of all library programming from the preceding 12 months
  o Report on all library director education and/or continuing education since beginning tenure
  o Summary of accomplishments during director’s tenure
  o Summary of organizational priorities
  o Summary of self-identified areas for improvement or further professional development

The evaluation team will review all materials provided and in-person meeting notes to determine necessary actions. If areas of improvement are identified, the State Library will assist the library and/or director in meeting those needs. Once those needs have been satisfied, the process will move towards completion and a recommendation will be made to the Governor’s Advisory Council that certification be granted.

If granted, the alignment will be in effect until the library director or the library board opts to terminate the employment relationship. This procedure does not grant permanent certification nor is it transferable on the behalf of the librarian or the library. At that time the Board of Directors will be responsible for hiring a candidate that is qualified and in compliance with the prevailing standards as defined by library regulations.
